

Double J Saddlery 3-Way Adjustable Rigging

Our 3 way In skirt rig plate eliminates the bulk of traditional Double D rigging, and is twice as strong, but it gives you the option of adjusting the saddle in 3 different positions. It is used in conjunction with a cutaway skirt on barrel racers, ropers, and can be put on any saddle we make. Its a great option which allows you to fit a lot of different horse's backs. Horse's shoulders tie into their skeleton in different positions, depending upon their particular confirmation. This option allows you to accommodate these differences in confirmation.

Forward Position

This position is used primarily to help keep your saddle from sliding to far forward

Rear Position

This position is used primarily to help keep your saddle sliding to far back.

Center position

This is the most commonly used position as it helps distribute the pressure evenly across the horse's back.
